Dear friends,

Working to bring this volume to you has been exciting, stressful, interesting, tiring, and entertaining. We have all learned a lot - both about the process and about you. There are more things to think about and remember than we ever could have imagined, but hopefully we have been able to remember most of them and include most of you.

Over the past year, there have been long nights and tough deadlines. We learned that staying up all night in a small room listening to the same radio station is enough to drive anyone crazy, but we seem to have held it all together. From our unique point of view, it has been fun to watch the community smile and laugh and play. There were times we wished in retrospect that we could have attended every party, game, and event, so that we could have shared the joy found in the pictures which were submitted to us afterwards.

We hope that you will enjoy looking back over your memories of 1996-7 with us. This is the first in a series of letters included in the book to allow the spirit of Guilford come through in words as well as pictures. Capturing as much of your spirit as possible was our foremost intention.

Sincerely,

The staff of the 1996-7 Quaker

Dearest Member of the Class of 2000,

We here at the First-Year Center have found ourselves hopelessly devoted to creating the best orientation experience imaginable. Called CHAOS (Community, Health, Advisement, Orientation and Services), it will erupt, launch, premiere, or otherwise begin Wednesday, August 21. It will educate, enlighten, elucidate (or otherwise orient) you to the basics of college life. You'll learn along with your First Year Seminar group, meet your advisor, register for classes, and find out about student organizations. You'll meet your classmates, student leaders, faculty, and college officials. While doing so, you'll have bunches of fun. The smattering of fun stuff we have in store for you includes the hilarious hypnotist Chuck Milligan, a talent showcase, the rollicking PLAYFAIR, and the Chaotic Games. And you and your classmates will be filmed for "Good Morning America!" We can't wait to meet you, and we can't wait for CHAOS to begin!

CHAOS ENSUES

It's madness! It's anarchy! No, it's CHAOS!! For Guilford's class of 2000, CHAOS ruled supreme during their initial days on campus. CHAOS (Community, Health, Advisement, Orientation Services) was a new spin on Guilford orientation. Pictured here during the week are Leslie Ale getting her first letter; Anne, Cory & Chris synchronizing their watches; Megan Glancy offering a welcome; Delphine Lincy & Ben Marks getting to know one another; and Matt Smith & an unknown victim enjoying one of the pre-orientation outdoor adventures.

The CHAOS Continues

During CHAOS students enjoyed a performance by hypnotist Chuck Milligan. At Chuck's suggestion, the group eagerly danced and slept, Badger Koon told the audience not to pee in the pool, and safely from his seat, Stephen Karakasidis showed his approval.

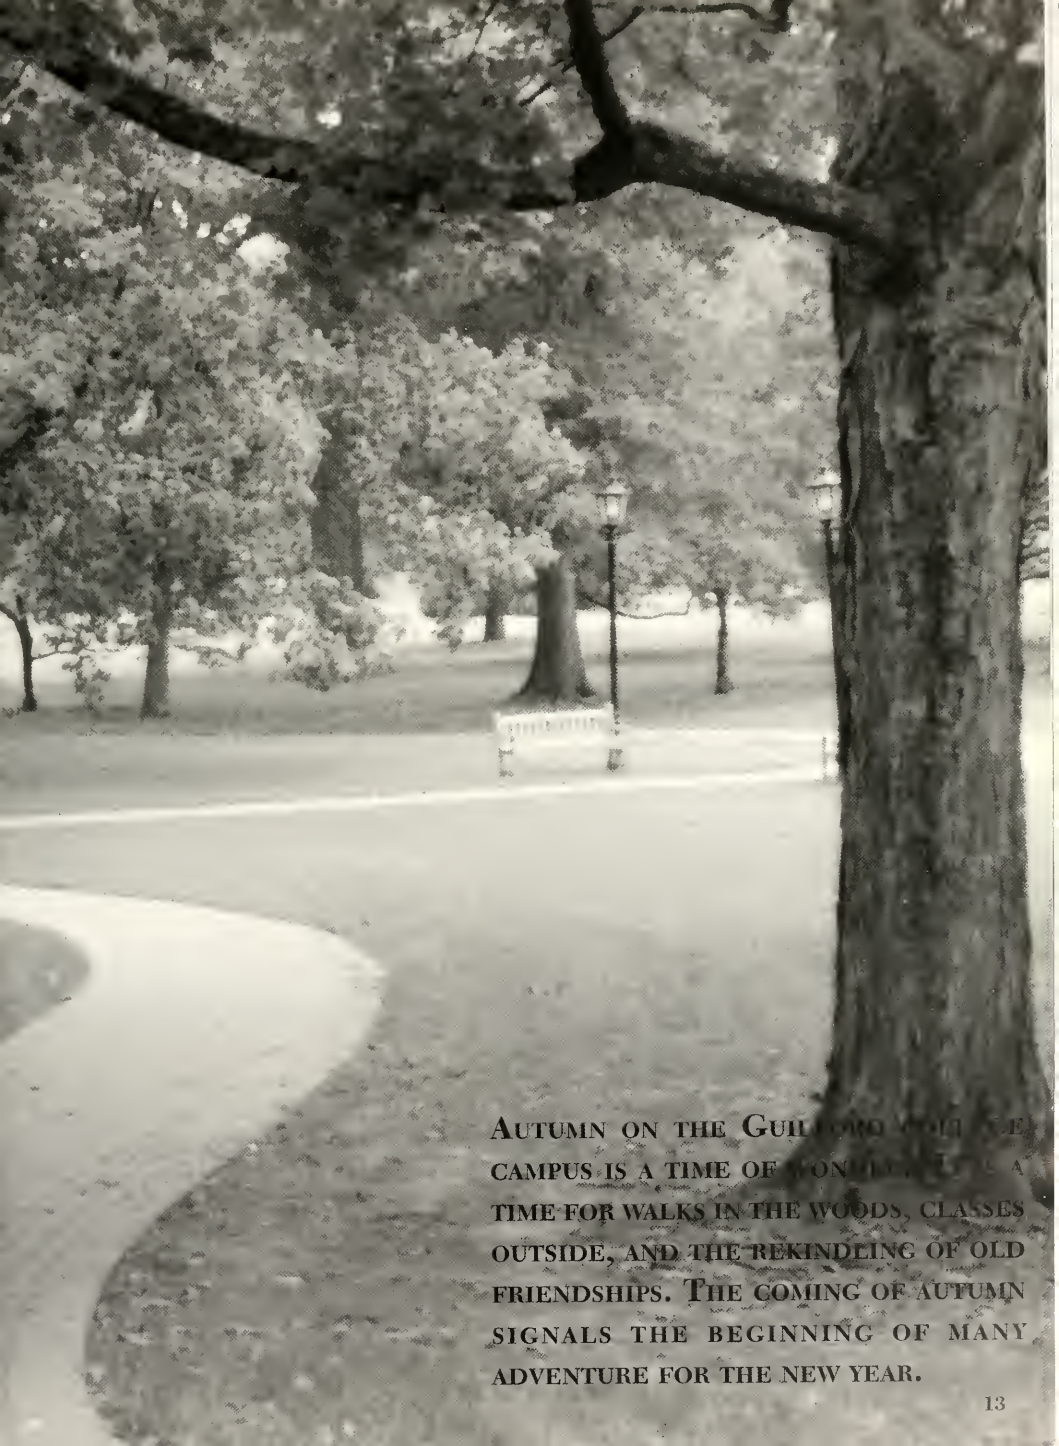
Autumn



AUTUMN ON THE GUILFORD COLLEGE CAMPUS IS A TIME OF WONDER, A TIME FOR WALKS IN THE WOODS, CLASSES OUTSIDE, AND THE REKINDLING OF OLD FRIENDSHIPS. THE COMING OF AUTUMN SIGNALS THE BEGINNING OF MANY ADVENTURE FOR THE NEW YEAR.

Movin' Right Along

One of the most eventful parts of any year is moving into a new home. Pictured here along with some of their stuff are (clockwise) Lindsay Oldenski; Amanda Cogar, Megan McCall, Mariah Sawyer & Karuna Markman of Dana 2; Ben Marks; Greg Paylor; Robert Somera; and Luke Parris signing off.

Over fall break some folks went home and caught up on sleep. Others went off with friends in search of adventure, or stayed in Greensboro to work. But many students and staff went on work trips—travelling near and far to help others in need and to learn about social issues ranging from homelessness and poverty to organic gardening. These pictures represent just a few of the work trips which took place this year over fall break.

Pope House

Dear Marian, Tiffany, and Frank,

I hope that you are all having a splendid time studying around the world. Since you guys left this semester, Skee George, Debbie Kiliru, and Sarah Carter have moved in, and the Pope House tradition of community and friendship lives on.

This winter has been fairly mild, although we are still having the typical house problems. There was a leak in the ceiling by the downstairs bathroom last week, and Debbie and Sarah's heater broke down three times. The ghosts continue their incessant clanking in the heat pipes - it just wouldn't be the same without it!

I cooked up a storm this past weekend, and we've been having many intimate house dinners. Sarah is in the ceramics room all the time, and she's designing the Serendipity shirt. Amy Smith is busy working on a lesson plan about adjectives for her student teaching, and Debbie is presently drying out melon seeds for her next jewelry creation. Hillary is still pulling all-nighters left and right, that crazy girl! The chess board is always set up in the living room, as Nate Dog and Skee continue improving their strategies. I cut Mike's hair the other day, and we've been hanging out whenever we're both working late at night.

I'm working on my thesis, and my classes are trucking right along. I'm hoping to go on the New York Art Seminar for Spring Break this year. By the way, the Pope House is still a party machine. We had a toga party this past Friday, and I think that the next one will be drag or something. It has certainly been an eventful year. I can't wait until we're all back in the same country so we can share our travels!

Love, Amy Parry

Dear Mom and Dad,

Glad that you caught the Good Morning America show where the Guilford Class of 2000 and I were "featured" waking up America on the morning of the Guilford inauguration.

The inauguration was a great gathering of Guilford community with students, faculty, staff, alumni and friends bringing greetings. Bill Rogers, the sixth President, presented me the keys to the original Founders Hall and the charter from 1837. The blessings were from the traditions of Quakers, Jews, Muslims, and Native Americans. When I looked out from the platform, there were students standing all around the audience and on the porch roof of Mary Hobbs. The Senate President warned me that the Seniors were here to help me this year, but next year I was on my own.

Students hosted the many alumni, friends, and guests from other institutions, and the campus was spectacular with sunshine, and the grand trees of the main quadrangle gave us all the sense of the history of the College. The week of the inauguration began with a day of service for the whole community in Greensboro and on campus and ended with a dance concert, an appearance of the Boston Celtics coached by M.L. Carr, Guilford Class of 1973, and a Quaker meeting.

I am getting used to everyone calling me Don instead of Professor McNemar, and I like it. The students and faculty are friendly, committed, and great students.

When winter comes, I am sure I will miss the snow falls of New England, but somehow I'll adjust to this warmer climate. Britta is busy working on her dissertation and our neighbors in Milner Hall have been great about encouraging her to study.

Britta and I are delighted to be in Greensboro, and I pleased that I was invited to be the seventh President of Guilford College.

Sincerely,
Don

OMING

Dear Friend,

Playing football here at Guilford has been a valuable experience. I have found that the lessons that I have learned on the field hold true in everyday life. I think that the most important concept that I have learned from playing football here is that a team is only as good as its weakest link. It is possible to have an extraordinary quarterback and offensive line, but if the receivers cannot catch and the running backs cannot run then your team will accomplish very little. By no means am I saying that the Guilford receivers cannot catch; Junior Lord and William Rochelle are great receivers! The point I am trying to make is that just like one part of a team cannot make a team successful, no one woman/man (or society for that matter) can stand alone and be truly successful. We are interdependent beings, and we can never be truly successful until everyone has a equal change to reach his/her full potential!

December 31,1996

Dear Cheryl,

John and I celebrated our sixth anniversary yesterday. We drove from John's parents' house outside of Cleveland to Niagra Falls. We spent the day walking around the Falls and driving around southern Ontario and northwest New York. They were having a warm day--mid 20s! It was weird seeing the Falls in the winter--the mist froze on our coats. I heard on the news today that it's more like eighty where you are! I can just imagine you and Caryn sitting by the pool laughing at me for deciding to spend Christmas in the north. Anyway, we had a great dinner at this little restaurant we found in New York right up by Lake Ontario. It was the best food we've had since Mom took us all on the cruise last winter--we couldn't decide if it was the food or if it was because we spent the whole day walking around in freezing weather. We're both pretty shocked we've been married for six years--the time really does fly by!

I'll go back to work on January 6th. I still think I'm one of the luckiest people alive to have such a great job. The first semester has been pretty challenging but, if it weren't a challenge, I'd surely be bored. There's nothing quite like seeing your efforts making a difference in the lives of students and in a college community. (And, I still think Guilford College is one of the greatest schools I've ever been affiliated with!) Now that I've been with Guilford for almost three years I feel like I'm at home. There are definitely things I miss from working in Continuing Education at Guilford, but I haven't regretted making the move to Student Activities this past summer. I work with some really great students--they are creative, hard-working, fun and invested in the true meaning of Guilford.

I'm hoping to come visit you for about ten days after Graduation and before the Summer Conference business starts full force (that's what Rob and I will be working on all summer). John will still be teaching in May so it will just be me unless I can talk Deena into coming too. Maybe we can go to the Keys for part of the time and swim at the dolphin research place like you did two years ago? We can find some cute little hotel and relax!

I hope you're enjoying your new job--I can't wait to hear more about it!

I love you!
Your big sis',
Dawn

Baby Josh,

Owdoan buddy! I hope that everything is going okay out there in the real world. We really miss your layout bids, your fingernail grabs, and your general all-around hugeness. Life, however, moves on, and we now have a new crop of babies that are full of energy and the love. These kids are amazing. They are picking up the game faster than us old-school babies ever did.

In years past, we only practiced three or four days a week. This semester we have committed ourselves to five days of practice and vigorous conditioning. We are scheduled for five tournaments (including Serendipity), and we may even be found at a few more. If this team comes together like I know it can, I truly believe that we can make it to regionals. Wouldn't that be a milestone! We have come a long way since the days of four person practices and eight person tournaments. You really should come out and practice with us one day. I think you really would be proud of this group of hard-core Ultimate players.

When I look back at the years I have spent playing Ultimate, I will always remeber the days of hangovers on Saturday mornings, endzone swill, buns of steel, and frothing of the mouth. Those days really were the best days of my life in college. Well. . . I gotta go, I think I have a class or something.

Dear UNION,

How insane UNION has been this year!! Those of us who wen to the NACA Conference in Charlotte, really bonded (especially in the linen closet), and boy were we grateful for those sheets during Fall Blowout.

Speaking of Fall Blowout, DAKKOTA was pretty funny, especially with those little cowboy hats. I bet the Papa John's man thought we were pretty weird. As we get rolling into 2nd semster, fond memories of "frisking" for shoes a bowling and an invitation back to All-Star Lanes come to mind. Yes, we are having to plan another Serendipity without a beer garden, but I'm sure it will be the greatest anyway. But hey, no need to stress over little things especially when we have power sticks and UNION dodgeball to look foreward too!! And for those who didn't understand this letter - JOIN UNION because UNION is fun.

Love,
Jeannette

17th ANNUAL
ARCTIC ROAD RA

Dear Page,

It's February and I'm wearing shorts. How are those snowstorms up in Vermont? I told you that you should have come south for school. It's close to paradise down here. I woke this morning to the sound of Bob Marley echoing out a neighbor's window, and into the quad of my dorm. It was noon, I couldn't complain; a nice way to start off a Sunday.

This weekend was definitely a needed break from school and work. On top of writing three papers and taking a test, I was busy worrying about how to send five Guilford students to Cleveland for a community service conference in March. Add to that helping to plan a Poverty/Homelessness Awareness week for the spring, and you've got one stressed-out college student. Yes, Project Community definitely keeps me busy. It'll all be worth it though, come May. Right now we're trying to find some people to work in the office next year because more than half of us won't be here for the semester. As for me, I'm hopefully off to Spain in the fall, yikes.

One more week 'til spring break, amazing. Seemed just last month I was lugging my fridge and TV up three flights of stairs and meeting up with my roommates for the first time. Another couple of months and I'll be a junior. I don't know if I should be scared or thrilled that time is flying by so fast, but right now I'm just trying to enjoy it while it lasts. You should try to make it down in April for Serendipity. A weekend bash complete with southern hospitality, good music, and warm weather — it can't be beat.

Anyway, I've only got a couple more hours until it's Monday and my work is now screaming at me. Take it easy,

Sincerely,
Noah Wood

February 17, 1997

Dear Nathanael,

Well, we are both into the home stretch now. I'm job hunting, you are applying to grad school, and we're both struggling to stay focused on the work at hand instead of dreaming about the future. I ought to be working on my senior thesis right now, but I'm writing you instead. It is funny how we've kept in touch these four years. We started out with our weekly phone calls, then moved to E-mail, and now I'm back to good, old-fashioned letters.

Did you know I wanted to transfer from Guilford and go to school with you once? I did—it was early in our sophomore year. Freshmen year went well for me, but by the start of the next year the newness of college had worn off and I felt like it would be nice to be somewhere with an old friend. I'm glad I didn't, though. The two years since then have been close to perfect.

I think the improvement started when I got into the London Semester program. You know how long I had wanted to go to England. While I was there, I loved everything I was doing. I learned how to enjoy studying again, which wasn't hard in a city that is like a giant history book. I also developed a new kind of self-confidence—a sense of who I was in relation to the world and what I was capable of doing. Football must have done something like that for you. I used to envy you for getting that out of your college experience since I didn't go on to play college hockey but you did make it in your sport.

Since London, though, I know that Guilford gave me something that I might not have gotten out of going to school with you or playing college hockey. It showed me people working hard together and achieving because they weren't afraid to limit their own capabilities or follow their passions. Some of my professors in particular were like this. I'm convinced that Guilford has a special place in the realm of liberal arts colleges, and it is for no reason other than people like them and the example they set for students. You know I've always liked to learn from examples!

Sincerely,
Jeff Hartz

As one door closes, another opens....

Dear Friends,

After several long, sleep deprived months of working on my thesis, its done. The question was then asked of me, what I got from the entire experience. The answer is not all that simple. It was so much more than the obscure science I taught myself and the long hours in front of a computer. I suppose I should explain that I had wanted to be an astronomer when I "grew up" from the time I was nine years old. In the past three years this dream has begun to be more complicated. I began to question it, both in terms of my ability and my desire to pursue astronomy. The process of this thesis made me realize why I had fallen in love with the science of it. I have always looked to the night sky for reassurance whenever everything else in my life seems so uncertain. On a plane, to a place I didn't know, the stars outside my window were a constant, and calmed my panic so that I might enjoy that new adventure.

When I look up now, I see not only the visible beauty of something that is the closest I can come to infinity, but the individual processes that create. The more I learn about the internal workings of my galaxies and stars, the greater my awe, and the more fearsome and absolutely breathtaking the beauty of the Universe becomes to me. I know there are no constants up there, yet the illusion of it, compared to my own life, provides me with a sense of perspective. There is a constancy in my Universe, and a commitment to something that can best be described as a perpetuation of beauty Next time you look up at those distant and untouchable lights in sky, understand that what creates them, the physics, the chemistry, the science of it functions before us on the smallest of scales. That is the commitment I speak of, and that I admire.

So the question still remains before me, what did I get from all this work? I learned that this love of science and astronomy is within me, an integral part of my perception of the world and of what beauty is. I fell in love again, or maybe I just had to learn that I had never stopped loving it. I discovered the pure joy in sharing my knowledge with others, no matter what level they were on. I learned to trust myself. I discovered that the beauty in the night sky is the closest I come to religion, and that when all else is crashing around me, it becomes my strength.

Flying is the art of falling and then missing the ground: this seems to be a superb philosophy for life. Here comes the future and you can't run from it
If you've got a blacklist I wanna be on it
I'm waiting for the great leap forward
In a perfect world we'd all sing in tune
But this is reality so give me some room
I'm waiting for the great leap forward
No one out there understands
So start your own revolution and cut out
the middle man
I'm taking the great leap forward.

It's 2:34 for I'm gonna go to bed & wake up to my new life.

"Pan, who and what art thou?" he cried huskily.
"I'm youth, I'm joy," Peter answered at a venture, "I'm a little bird that has broken out of the egg."
This, or course, was nonsense; but it was proof to the unhappy Hook that Peter did not know in the least who or what he was, which is the very pinnacle of good form.

guilford's gift to me

I have received many gifts during my stint at Guilford but the one that stands out the most to me is the gift of friendship and what I will take from those friendships when I leave this wonderful place. I have met the greatest friends and they have helped me shape my life, my character, and my personality.

Here are some of the gifts they have given me: Give it your all when involved in anything, be independent, acknowledge and be patient with different opinions from yours, make education a priority—not a chore, always take time for yourself, and live for the moment. These are all the gifts that my friends have given me which I will take with me when I move on.

I love these people and would not have met them nor become close if it was not for Guilford and its great atmosphere. Guilford has nurtured us, fed us, watered, and has grown us so we are complete, mature people ready to challenge the world. Some of our great times together were in Milner and Bryan, at the dances and cookouts, on the court and in the classroom, during the icestorms and Serendipity, at the $1.50 theater and Jan's House. . . It's all a part of Guilford's gift to me.

Thank you friends and thank you Guilford. You will be with me forever.

"What Pepsicola fears most is that people will stop buying and using their products. What Microsoft fears most is that they will lose their umbilicus when people refuse to sign on to the Internet. What Time-Warner fears most is that people will stop reading their garbage and going to the movies. What Dow Chemical fears most is that people will no longer consider their poisons indispensable. And what the whole of Japanese corporate society fears most is that people will quit watching television. In this day and age it is seen as an act of civil disobedience to curtail or cut back consumption of corporate product. Independence, self-reliance, individualism, self-sufficiency are all threats to the rampant consumption which fuels the corporate fires and pollutes the planet. Out of the night that covers me,
Black as the Pit from pole to pole,
I thank whatever gods may be for my unconquerable soul.

In the fell clutch of circumstance
I have not winced nor cried aloud.
Under the bludgeonings of chance
My head is bloody, but unbowed.

Beyond this place of wrath and tears
Looms but the horror of the shade,
And yet the menace of the years
Finds, and shall find me, unafraid.

It matters not how strait the gate,
How charged with punishments, the scroll,
I am the master of my fate;
I am the captain of my soul.

Education will not; the world is full of educated derelicts. Persistence and determination are omnipotent. The slogan 'press on' has solved and always will solve the problems of the human race."

It is time for me to take the next step on the path of life. Now with the support of my family and friends, with all I've learned plus the love inside of me, and with God guiding my way. . .I am finally ready. And Sean, wherever life takes me I know that you will be beside me and forever share in my life and in all of who I am. I love you.

Jenny, you are the best!
Steve, Jay, Jon, Fern, Bryan, Drew, Roc, and Kevin, thanks for all the great memories. Good luck and I wish you prosperity in your lives.
Chris Hoh, good luck! You will be great at anything you decide to do.
Grego, Artmen, Lyson, Dave M., John, Skipper and Dave W., have a great senior year and good luck.
To all the girls at C-22, thanks for everything and the best of wishes.
To all those who have made a difference in my life at Guilford, Thank You!

I just wanted to thank everyone who helped me get here (Mom, Dad, Jayme), and also everyone who helped me get through college. I hope I'll see y'all again after college and remember, find a wench, have great sex and raise fat babies.

"God, I am scurrying around like a chicken with her head cut off, making a mess everywhere I light. Why God, when I know if I wait quietly and listen for your guidance, I do better and work more efficiently, do I rush about—driven by time, rather than by you? Help me, God, to slow down, to be silent, so I can hear you and your will and not mine."

"That which does not kill me makes me stronger"
Thank you Guilford for making me stronger, and thanks to all of the people who were a part of it. • Tippy—I'll love you always • Ryan, Sarah, and Crissy—Thanks for being there • Ellie May—you're not a policeman, you're a princess • Furry—well, um, I think. . .• Mims—Sprite? Penzance. Did I mention that you make me crazy? • Ben, Dingo, Clean and the rest of the London crowd—where's the Princess Royal when you need it? Cheers—Thanks a lot!

Mom, Dad, Keri, and Kathryn—I love you all and can't thank you enough for your endless support.
Fery—Wouldn't you like to be a pepper too? What are you wearing? Miguel—Herbie did not act alone. You're a rad roomie! Ubu—You're an angel and a saurus. I love you. Scooby—Did that really just happen? Aww rats! And to all the other funny people who have made these four years unforgettable: Jenn, Jess, Bari, Kristin, Amy, Alex, Turfey, and the Belize crew—thank you.

THE QUAKER

One big happy family, the Quaker staff
Seated, L-R: Britt Horrocks, Susan Allen, Mariah Sawyer
Standing, L-R: Dana Clark, Cory Birdwhistell, Stephen Karakasidis

A tale of two editors?

I can't bear to look - How did it turn out? asks Susan.
I'm still smiling, aren't I? replies Mariah.
We made it through, together.

The 1996-7 Quaker may look like the work of a diligent few, but there were so many people without whom we could not have brought this book to you.

thanks to

- Jenn Wingo for coordinating the Study Abroad pages
- Our devoted photographers: Amy Parry, Jimi Lulejian, Haley Woodward, Ben Newlin, Megan Brown, Isaac Palant, Melissa Salzman, & Thad Rombauer for their time and effort
